

AD330 Branding

Spring 2022-2
Professor Cliff Shaluta

COURSE BRIEF

Course Description

Brands are everywhere! Research clearly shows that most consumers prefer brands they know and trust over brands they don't. But, why? This course covers the process of creating and projecting a distinctively authentic personality for a product, business, or even a person. We'll discuss traditional and digital methods of branding and put you to work solving a real-world branding problem.

Rationale

Consumer technology and social media platforms have changed the way brands engage with consumers. Successful brands today cultivate a distinctive personality through their communications, often digital. Their goal is to represent the essence of their brand to target consumers. When done well, a brand's personality and brand promise align with consumer motivations and interests. This course emphasizes the process of developing a brand, with a focus on how digital technology has made branding possible for large corporations, as well as smaller businesses and individuals.

Methodology

This course incorporates a variety of learning tools to maximize your online experience. While we'll be using Blackboard for announcements, additional content, teamwork, and grades, the bulk of the course will be available using a new online learning platform from <https://stukent.com>. StuKent provides bite-sized content supported with videos, links, exercises and quizzes.

How does this really work?

Think of Blackboard as a shell. Inside that shell is Stukent. The latest news, a course syllabus, weekly planners and your grades will be available in Blackboard, as usual. Teams will also be organized using Blackboard. This permits team communication inside the class website. But, your day-to-day interactions with the course material will be on Stukent. This type of approach works best with supplemental in-class discussions. So, please reserve Monday's & Wednesday's beginning 1/19 from 9:10 -10:05 am for Branding & 10:20 to 11:15 am for Ad Media to attend ZOOM sessions. We'll not Zoom every week, but you'll want to keep the day/times open for individual and team projects down the road.

Course Prerequisites

AD 330 requires AD 300 with a minimum grade of C or COMM 300 with a minimum grade of C or PS 301 with a minimum grade of C or SOCL 302 with a minimum grade of C. Other research courses may be substituted for the prereg. For now, Advertising Minors are not required to have a research class to take this course. But this is changing with the launch of our new Digital Advertising Certificate. Please see your Advisor with any questions.

Course Resources

You'll need Blackboard and paid access to the materials on the StuKent learning platform. Branding requires (1) StuKent resource. Advertising: Selling in Today's World by Ed Russell and Brian Sheehan is our primary resource. We'll follow the Stukent organization pretty closely, including chapter quizzes.

You can purchase the access code directly from Stukent using the link below. If required by financial aid, you may alternatively choose to purchase access to Stukent through the WKU Bookstore. Be sure to double-check this syllabus with the WKU Bookstore recommendations, as the bookstore will not refund digital purchases. Either way, Stukent provides excellent technical support at <https://www.stukent.com/support/>. Your access code also gives you "lifetime access" to this material, which is regularly updated.
